Description:

Fine old color example of Vrients map of the British Isles, which appeared only in the 1608 and later editions of Ortelius' Theatrum Orbis Terrarum, the first modern atlas of the World.

Vrients map is one of the most elegantly engraved and distinctively designed maps of the British Isles to appear in a commercial atlas. In 1601 Antwerp publisher Jan Baptist Vrients, after the great cartographer's death, took over publication of the Theatrum ..., gradually adding new maps, though not necessarily replacing existing plates.

Among the new maps was this of England, Wales and Ireland, with a genealogical table for the English Royal Family, at top right, and engraving, "... of the highest standard with artistically placed sea monsters, galleons, a mermaid, Neptune, and other decorative features" (Shirley). Here in its second state, with reengraved panel removing the dedication to James I.
