Description:

Nice example of this rare satirical view, which would later be re-engraved by Paul Revere.

The John Carter Brown catalog entry notes:

Cartoon showing a European gentleman with the Boston Port Bill in his pocket pouring tea down a [native American] woman's mouth. She is being held down by a lascivious gentleman at her feet and a judge at her arms. A woman holding a spear and shield covers her eyes while a gentleman holds a sword with "Military Law" on it. In the background is a scene of "Boston cannonaded" and in the foreground is a tattered paper containing Boston's petition to England.

Detailed Condition:

Minor foxing.
