Description:

Rare view of Green Bay, published by Barnes-Crosby Company

Barnes-Crosby Company

Barnes-Crosby was best known for publishing an extensive fine lithograph stereoview series of United States scenes starting in the late 1890's and continuing for nearly 20 years. Their issues included "Polychrome Stereo View/World Series/Reproduced from Original Stereoscopic Photograph." Only a few of these lithoviews have been seen as photo stereoviews.

Before founding the Barnes-Crosby Company, George W. Barnes worked alone in Topsham and Brunswick, Maine during the 1870's; A. B. Crosby worked alone in Lewiston, Maine around the same time. A single view was reported under this imprint, of an unidentified building.
