Description:

Rare Separately Published Map of the West

Large scale pocket map of the States and Territories west of the Rocky Mountains, published by Colton and by Payot, Upham & Co. in San Francisco.

Fine example of Colton's large format map of the West, colored by counties and focusing on the projected railroad lines west of the Rocky Mountains, shortly after the creation of Yellowstone National Park.

The map pre-dates the creation of several California Counties, including Riverside, Orange and Imperial Counties.

Colton's New Township Map of the Pacific States and Territories, California, Nevada, Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Montana, Wyoming, Utah and Arizona. 1883

Excellent detail along the railroad routes to the various mining regions in Arizona and Arizona. The Southern Pacific is now shown crossing the region to Los Angeles.

A large Navajo Indian Reservation appears in northeast Arizona and New Mexico.

This is the last of Colton's regional maps of the west and apparently the rarest. The map seems only to have been issued in 1883, and we find only a single example.

Detailed Condition:

Folding map in original brown cloth covers.
