Description:

Fine Contemporary Color Example

Fine example of JB Homann's map of Virginia, Maryland, North Carolina and South Carolina.

The present example has been finely colored in the period, likely by a Dutch colorist. It was acquired as part of a collection of maps from a composite atlas, many of which were similarly colored. Homann maps are ordinarily issued with uncolored cartouches. The present example reflects the work of a trained contemporary hand, almost certainly of Dutch origin.

One of the most decorative maps of the area, intended to promote German immigration to America. Germantown Teutsche Statt is placed at the headwaters of the Rappahanock. A number of early counties shown in the Carolinas. Nice detail in the interior of Virginia and Maryland for the period. New Jersey is divided into East and West New Jersey. The region in the west is Florida, extending to Lake Erie. Shows Indian tribes and place names, rivers, bays, coastal soundings, early settlements and other details.

Embellished by one of the most decorative cartouches to appear on a map of the region, showing figures from regional history and local trade with the English. The Atlantic is Mare Virgini [or] Sea of Virginy.
