Description:

Fascinating map of England during the time of the Romans, published by R.H. Laurie in London.

The map provides a nice overview of the Roman Roads, major monuments and other facts from Roman antiquity.

The map credits John Horsley as the source of the information. Horsley, a Scottish Presbyterian minister and antiquarian active in the early 18th century., is best known for his publication of a three-volume study on Roman Antiquities in Britain in 1732. He created several important maps of England on Roman Times.
