Description:

Spectacular double hemisphere map of the world, published in Amsterdam.

Shirley notes "...the informative borders on Jansson's map exemplify Dutch engraving and decorative skills of the early seventeenth century".

This is one of the most dramatic folio world maps from the Dutch "cartes-à-figures" period. The map is flanked with eight sovereigns on horseback in the upper border, ten pairs of male and female costume figures from European countries in the lower, and eighteen vignette views of cities, and with two inset Biblical scenes, and an elaborate title cartouche incorporating nine portraits, Ptolemy and eight famous mariners, including Columbus, Magellan and Drake.

This map first appeared in 1622. Following the death of his first wife, van den Keere was forced to sell many map plates. This map passed to Dirck Evertsen Lons, who reprinted it in the same year. Subsequently the plates passed to Janssonius who reprinted it in 1628 and 1632, as here.
