Description:

Detailed engraved antique map of the West African coast showing present-day Senegal, Gambia, and Cape Verde.

An inset map shows Île de Gorée (here called "Isola Goree"), which is a large island in the harbor of Dakar, Senegal. The island played an important role in the European colonization of West Africa, and it is often associated with the Atlantic slave trade. A note on the map mentions its takeover by the French in 1677.
