Description:

Polish Propaganda During World War II

Interesting set of maps of Poland, illustrating the changing boundaries of Poland from 1657 through 1939, with a short explanation explaining each of the maps.

On the verso, a set of 7 images of major Polish cities.

The map was published by the Polish Information Centre. Boswell was a Professor of Russian History, Language and Literature at the University of Liverpool and author of "The Eastern Boundaries of Poland."

The Polish Information Centre was established to give a voice to Polish resistance in America and would later go on to advocate mass Jewish emmigration from Poland, a position which would run afoul of the Jewish communities in England and America.
