Description:

Interesting map of North America, published in Augsburg by Walch.

The map illustrates North America shortly after the dissemination of the discoveries of Lewis & Clark, with "Clarke's" River clearly depicted on the map in the region called Columbiathal. The Multomah River also makes an early appearance on this map.

In the mid-Continent, a number of Indian Tribes are shown in the Louisiana region, which had just become part of America. The boundary between Louisiana and New Mexico does not yet reflect the boundary set by the United States and Spain in the Adams Onis Treaty.

The configuration of Alaska is interesting.
