Description:

Mississippi Territory!

Rare early state of Walch's map of the United States, showing a number of early and transitional territorial configurations. This map vividly illustrates the fluid nature of American territorial boundaries between the Louisiana Purchase and the Adams-Onis Treaty in 1819.

The map pre-dates the establishment of Mississippi Territory, with a massive Georgia extending to the Mississippi River.

Curiously Florida is also shown extending to New Orleans.

The map shows a massive Indiana Territory, pre-dating the delineation of Illinois or Michigan Territories.

Louisiana is shown, as is the former Neu Orleans territory, which briefly existed during the Spanish and French control of the region. Massive Missury Territory.
