Description:

Restricted U.S. Military Map of Okinawa as it was Being Converted into a Major American Base.

Color-printed map of Okinawa, produced by the 3020th Engr. Topo. Co. (Corps) on Okinawa, in September 1945, immediately after the end of World War II.

The map is awash in information illustrating how the island was converted into a base of operations for the planned invasion of Japan, and later into a major Post War American military base. There are 196 numbered landmarks including airfields, ammo dumps, hospitals, signal stations, equipment repair units, etc. In addition to those numbered locations, the map is overprinted with information about piers and moorings, seaplane bases, fuel dumps (with petroleum storage capacity as of September 1, 1945), etc.
