Description:

Lithographed folding map of the Mexican railway system (and the U.S. system as it related to the former) published by Stanford in London in 1882.

The map shows the Mexican national railway running up to Laredo where it crosses into the United States and is fed by numerous tributary railroads. Particular emphasis is put on the Texas & St. Louis Railway which extends to Chicago. In general, the map gives the impression of easy access to

The map differentiates between (Red) The Mexican National Railway, Branches & Connections; (Solid, Thick Grey) The Mexican Railway, Limited; and (Thin Solid and Dashed Grey) The Principal Through Routes in the United States.

The manuscript additions to the map track the completion of rail laid shortly after the production of the map. It was probably added by a British or American investor in the company tracking the progress of the reorganized build-out in late 1882 or early 1883.
