Description:

Lively travel poster, promoting the Ulster region of Northern Ireland, published by the British Travel and Holidays Association, in cooperation with the Northern Ireland Tourist Board.

The map focuses on roads and tourist attractions. The landscape is covered in elegant illustrations highlighting the sights, pastimes, history, and myths of the region. The illustrations include Robert the Bruce and a spider on Rathlin Island; St. Patrick's grave; the Siege of Londonderry; Slieve Gullion, "Haunt of heroes and legendary giants;" and Finn MacCoul hurling a rock, thereby creating Loch Neagh.

A key at bottom left identifies a wide range of locations, including ports, youth hostels, golf courses,
