Description:

Published as part of The London Atlas of Universal Geography, a text noted by the Rumsey Collection as remarkable for its elegance and clarity, considered to contain some of the earliest truly "modern" maps of the 19th century. This map shows the Old World, including Europe, the Middle East, and North Africa. Detail on the map stops at the mythical "Lunae Montes" in Africa and around Scythia in north Asia.

This map balances providing abundant details on geopolitical boundaries, settlements, and geomorphologies while appearing visually attractive and stylish manner.
