Description:

Attractive color-printed plan of the foreign concession area of Tianjin, published for Carl Crow's handbook on China in the early 1920s.

As the map shows the Austria-Hungarian section, it probably predates the end of World War I and the fall of the Austro-Hungarian Empire, in 1918. Their concession was abandoned in 1919.

In addition to the Austria-Hungarian concession, the Russian, French, Japanese, British, Italian, German, and Belgian concessions are depicted.

Major street names are listed.
