Description:

Possibly The First American Airlines Route Map for the United States

Rare early American Airlines route map, prepared in conjunction with the Gousha Company.

The map focuses on the routes serviced by American in 1936, with an additional 13 strip maps showing major routes.

This map is one of the earliest American Airlines Route Maps for the United States and was apparently issued for several years. The earliest route map for American Airlines listed on OCLC is dated 1936. In the prior year, it appears the American Airlines began issuing "Souvenir Air Maps", which consisted of single route strip maps showing the individual routes which appear on this 1936 map.

Rarity

The map is apparently quite scarce. OCLC locates 3 copies (Southern Illinois University, University of Chicago and German Central Library).

Rumsey holds the 1936 and 1939 editions of this map.

Detailed Condition:

Folding map with minor wear at folds. Printed front and back on one sheet.
