Description:

Scarce plan of Gibraltar, published by one of France's leading military mapmakers, during the Seven Years War.

The plan shows the whole of the peninsula, with fortifications and batteries given particular attention.

34 points of interest are denoted in a key below the map image. This is supplemented to 50 landmarks in a further key within the map image.

A "succincte" description of Gibraltar follows below the map.

Lattré was responsible for a series of maps of Gibraltar at the outset of the Seven Years War, which saw France and the United Kingdom at war throughout the world.

Treuttel and Wurtz published a later edition of the map at the end of the 18th century.

Detailed Condition:

Original hand-color. Old horizontal fold and three old vertical folds. Toning in the lower-right corner. Some minor foxing. The privilege statement in the imprint line has been partially effaced, no doubt in a moment of Revolutionary fervor. Good to VG.
