Bizerte

Arab armies took Bizerte in 647 in their first invasion of the area, but the city reverted to control from Constantinople until the Byzantines were defeated and finally driven from North Africa in 695-98. The troops of Charles V of the Holy Roman Empire captured the city in 1535, but the Ottoman Turks took it back in 1574, as part of the reconquest of Tunis under Kapudan Pasha Uluç Ali Reis. The conquest of Tunis in 1574 marked the final conquest of Tunis by the Ottoman Empire over the Spanish Empire. This was an event of great significance as it decided that North Africa would be under Muslim rather than
