Description:

An Important Early Map of Rome -- The so-called "Pianta Della Guerra di Napoli"

Finely engraved separately published map of Rome, with east at the top, emphasizing its hills and the major monuments of the city, along with its newly constructed defensive walls.

Of greatest note is the map's depiction of the walls and fortifications constructed in Rome in 1556 and 1557. Constructed under the direction of Camillo Orsini during the reign of Pope Paul IV, the walls were built to improve Rome's defenses against attack from the south by the Spanish Forces who had crossed into the Southern part of the Papal State and were then threatening Rome from the south. Scholars have come to calling this map the "Pianta Della Guerra di Napoli", (Plan for the War of Naples).

The map includes a dedication to Pope Paul IV (1476-1559).

The map was engraved by N. Beatrizet for Antonio Lafreri in Rome. This is the first state of three editions, as noted by Bifulco.
