Description:

Curious genealogical tree which traces the lineages of the kings of France and other important European dynasties back to the year "3509 of the world" (about 500 BC). This twisting and branching tree starts with the kings of two Germanic peoples, the Sicamri and the Saxons, which eventually link up in about AD 900. Numerous lineages can be found, including the Kings of France, the house of Brandenburg, the Kings of Italy, the Dukes of Holstein, and much, much more.

A "remark" in the text claims that this is the most beautiful piece of genealogical history which has ever existed. It credits the researchers who composed this genealogical tree, including several members of the priesthood. The map was issued in Chatelain's Atlas Historique.

Detailed Condition:

Very small loss in center of map. Minor centerfold tone.
