Description:

Striking decorative map of Africa south of the eastern Horn and the Gulf of Guinea. Excellent detail is displayed throughout the map, with the interior of the continent at times accurately shown and at times labeled "little known." The uncertain nature of the mapping did not stop De L'Isle from inferring certain the position of certain lakes from hearsay, including the Great Lakes in the Great Rift Valley.

An attractive decorative cartouche shows a sailing ship passing by a sea monster spouting water. Numerous notes adorn the map. Robin Island is named.

This map originally appeared in De Fer's Atlas Curieux.
