Description:

Flawless example of this remarkable map of Canada, the Great Lakes and the Course of the Mississippi, extending south to the Missouri River. This map is one of the best obtainable compilations of the location of the various French & Indian Churches, Forts and settlements during the period, and also depicts significant river crossing locations, portages and other essential travel information in the region. The search for the water route to the Pacific is still very much alive in the reports of this map, although no definitive route is shown as clearly open. Kershaw 307; Plate 200.
