Description:

Detailed map of Texas, Upper California and Mexico, by Samuel Augustus Mitchell.

The Austin's Colony appears prominently in Texas, along with Austin's Grant, Washington, Houston, Goliad, and a number of other early settlements.

The map also provides a fascinating look at the pre-Gold Rush Upper California and nice details on the Great Spanish Trail and Salt Lake region. The map also shows many Indian Tribes located throughout the West.

Fremont's name now appears on the map (Fremont's Pass near "Mountain Lake", which would become Lake Tahoe) and the cartography of Upper California reflects his extensive travels and exploration of Upper California in the 1840s California. The Great Spanish Trail from Santa Fe to Los Angeles and San Diego is shown, as is Mt. San Bernardin[o] and the California Missions

A huge Tule Lake appears on the map. A number of early towns are named (such as Pueblo de Los Angeles!), along with the California Missions.
