Columbia River Gorge "Where Rolls The Oregon" | Maps of Columbia Gorge

The tall map has the mouth of the Columbia at the bottom, Portland, Oregon, in the middle, and Mount Hood and the Deschutes River at the top.

This map appeared in many editions, but this is among the earliest and scarcest. This map was copyrighted by F.W. Baltes and Company and issued for the Union Pacific System.

This is a beautiful example of Fred A. Routledge's characteristic stylized realism, which he deployed to great effect in his views and maps of Oregon and the surrounding areas.

Routledge appears to have been greatly motivated in his work by the advent of commercial air travel, which he often explicitly references in his maps and views.

Detailed Condition:

Folding bird's-eye view map printed front and back.
