Description:

Transatlantic Navigation in the 18th Century

Finely executed French sea chart of the south part of the Atlantic Ocean, covered in rhumb lines.

Intended for general Transatlantic navigation, the chart includes an extensive table of Longitudes and Latitudes of the major ports and islands on the coast of France, Spain, Portugal, Africa, Madeira, the Canary Islands, Azores, Cap Verd Islands, Antilles, Santa Domingo, Bermuda, North America, Newfoundland and the various strategic fishing islands in the North Atlantic.

Issued at the outset of the American Revolution, it would have been used by French Naval Officers and Naval Merchant vessels plying the Atlantic Ocean during the war years.
