Description:

Fine early two-sheet sea chart of Scotland, published by the French Hydrographical Office, under the direction of Nicolas Bellin.

The chart includes rhumb lines, anchorages, and other coastal features, along with a number of roads and details in the interior of the chart. The western islands of Scotland are attractively portrayed if a bit reduced.

The division between the upper and lower maps occurs just above Torridon in the west and Dornoch Firth in the east. The upper map contains the Shetlands and Orkneys, as well as six coastal views onto the Orkneys.
