Description:

Great decorative copperplate engraving showing a collection of ships at sea, originally published in Coronelli's Atlante Veneto. The upper of the two images shows Chinese junks, while the lower image shows Indian transport ships.

Interestingly, we can tell something about how the present image was printed by closely examining the edges of the ship's images, and how they interact with the intricate decorative borders that surround them. The boats and border were printed from separate copper plates but on the same sheet. This practice was not unheard of but is rather unusual.

Coronelli's Atlante Veneto was intended to accompany Blaeu's Atlas Maior and contained abundant maps.

However, due to the idiosyncratic nature of the publication of the book, images of Coronelli's ships are rarer today than his maps are.
