Description:

Attractive chart showing the known planets in the first half of the 18th century. Showing Saturn, Jupiter, Mars, Venus, and Mercury, the map includes both accurate depictions of some of the planets as well as astrological representations.

The symbols shown for the planets, which now have astrological meaning, derive from ancient Greek shorthand contractions for the names of the planets. Depictions of the Roman gods are also included.

This work originally appeared in the celestial atlas Mercurii Philosophici Firmamentum Firmianum. The work was engraved by Jakob Hering and published by Thomas for his patron Leopold Anton von Firmian, Archbishop of Salzburg.
