Description:

Original Pen and Ink Cartoons on Artist's Board

Vintage cartoon showing the last days of 1923 ticking away, with the old year represented by an old man and the new year by a child. The old man's face further serves as a clock, with the days labeled and rapidly disappearing. The cartoon asks the viewer to "make your resolutions early."

This view was produced by Frank Kettlewell, a noted Bay Area illustrator and satirist who worked for the Oakland Tribune and produced many important illustrations that reflected interwar and Depression-era California politics.
