Description:

Sebastian Munster's Map of his Hometown Region

Attractive 16th-century woodblock engraving of the southern border of Germany and Switzerland, between the Untersee and Basel. With the projection showing north to the south, Basel can be found in the upper right of the map, and the Rhine River traces two sides of the plan.

This work was engraved by Sebastian Munster in Basel, and shows a wealth of topographical information regarding the surrounding region. Mountains, forests, and cities are all engraved in his classic Gothic style. Latin text below the map describes southern Germany and Switzerland.
