Description:

Attractive original antique map of the islands off of Stockholm published by Jacques Bellin in Paris in the latter half of the 18th century. The map focuses on the area around the islands of Orno and Uto, areas where important trade passes through but dangerous to navigate.

In the northernmost part of the map is Stockholm and shows soundings to get out to the open ocean, with various passages that can be taken. A note says that this passage is little-known by geographers and poorly recorded in English, French, and Dutch sea charts. This map is based on the accounts of a French navigator from a 1739 voyage.

Detailed Condition:

Original French hand-color.
