Description:

Original antique map of the province Swabia, in southern Germany, published by Nicolas Sanson in Paris. This is a 1703 state of the map which was originally published in the mid-17th century.

The map is highly detailed in Sanson's French School style, containing large amounts of information but remaining simple and aesthetic in its decorative tendencies. Forests, towns, cities, roads, and more are all shown. Cities shown include Basel, Stuttgart, Wirtenberg, Augsburg, and Heidelberg.

The map includes a decorative cartouche in the lower left, a scale bar in the upper right, and a legend for all the different types of towns shown, describing the different types of cities including Imperial Cities and military "comanderies."

Detailed Condition:

Original hand-color in outline. Minor fold toning and offsetting. Foxing in the bottom-right margin.
