Description:

Detailed map of the environs of Fort Louis on the island of Guadalupe, now Port-Louis on the western coast of the north part of the island.

The map shows the layout of the fort and its neighboring town. A planned extension (Bourg Projette) appears to the east of the town. Inland are some fields and sparse vegetation. The map includes a decorative title cartouche and rhumb lines.

This is one of the maps produced by Nicholas Bellin for his Petit Atlas Maritime. Bellin was one of the most important maritime cartographers in 18th-century France and was responsible for producing maps for the French Navy.

Detailed Condition:
Faint original hand-color.
