Decorative map showing the wanderings of the Apostles throughout the Holy Land and the Eastern Mediterranean, published by the great Parisian cartographer Nicholas Sanson.

The map includes a large inset of the Holy Land and a town plan of Jerusalem, based upon Villalpando's view of the city. In the lower left, an inset of the Holy Land shows the distribution of major historical cities and of the twelve tribes. The routes taken by Paul towards Rome from the Holy Land are engraved onto the map. Notes describing the cartographic features shown on the map abound.

The map includes numerous decorative elements including two compass roses and an ornate, devotional cartouche.
