Description:

Original 19th-century antique map of the Province of Manitoba, showing the cities of Winnipeg and Portage la Prairie. This interesting map shows topography, railroads including the Canadian Pacific railway, and many population centers. The map was published by Rand McNally and Company in Chicago in 1896.

The map shows Manitoba at a time in its history when Winnipeg was the third-largest city in Canada. In addition, Manitoba lacks the shape it holds today, with Saskatchewan wrapping around to include much of the northern part of the province, including part of Lake Winnipeg.

Minor toning at edges.
