Description:

Highly detailed chart of the North Pacific, based upon Cook's map of 1784 & updated in 1794 to include information from Vancouver & MacKenzie. This edition adds information from 18th Century Russian sources not shown on earlier edition. One interesting feature is the supposed course of the Columbia extending due north into British Columbia. The map includes a nearly daily course of Cook's voyage, details in Northern Canada and along the NW Coast of America, including the region explored by Vancouver, details on the NW Passage from Hans Sloan's Japanese map of the world, information on certain arctic coastlines from Russian sources and many other annotations. A good example, backed with archival linen to support an old fold split. Minor discoloration at the centerfold. Normally, a $1500 map.
