Description:

Impressive five-sheet aerial photograph maps of Dallas, Texas, based on photos taken in 1950 and published by the US Air Force in 1951.

The maps were prepared for the Strategic Air Command in 1951, possibly as part of an assessment of strategic targets during the early Cold War.

The map consists of five sheets, one for each quadrant of the Dallas metropolitan area, and one general sheet of central Dallas.

Detailed Condition:

Five sheets, unjoined. Illustrated with a digital composite as the main image. Maps folding, as issued. Scant manuscript annotations.
