Description:

Fine and very decorative antique map showing the course of the Aniene River, using Latin toponyms throughout.

This decorative map shows topography, forests, rivers, towns, and more. The places shown are denoted using their Latin toponyms, for example, the Aniene is referred to as the Anio, and Tivoli is termed Tibur. Roman vias are shown.

The map includes many decorative elements, including a compass rose, characters below the map, and a large pastoral cartouche.
