Description:

Striking large map of North America in attractive full wash colors, from the French edition of Carey & Lea's Atlas of America, one of the most important American Atlases of the early 19th Century. The map includes a 54-40 or fight border with Canada, and depicts Mexico immediately after its Independence from Spain (and still including Texas and Upper California).

The cartography of Lewis & Clark, Humboldt and Long, are very much in evidence. The mythical river connecting the Pacific with the Rocky Mountain region is still shown. A Russian Company near San Francisco is noted. The missions of Upper California are named and shown, and there is marvelous detail in Russian America (Alaska) and throughout the Transmississippi West. A nice example of this beautiful map.
