Description:

Striking map of the state of Indiana from Finley's New American Atlas, colored by counties and showing towns, roads, rivers, mountains, and other geographical features.

Only the southern counties remotely resemble their final configuration. Most of the northern portion of the territory is Indian lands. While published in 1824, the map lacks the counties formed in 1823, leaving a massive Delaware County at the center.

One of the earliest obtainable maps of Indiana, during accelerated exploration and settlement in the state.
