Description:

This is a fine 1899 plan of London's central districts lithographed on cloth. Published by George Philip & Son of London and Liverpool, the map covers a large portion of central London, extending north of Regents Park, west of Holland Park, south to Battersea Park, and east to docklands east of the Tower of London. The map is printed on cloth, making it durable and easy to fold and carry. It features clear and concise labeling of streets, landmarks, and major buildings, making it an indispensable tool for navigating the city.

Detailed Condition:

Printed on cloth with the original gilt-lettered case.
