Description:

Fine Wall Map of Paris.

Spectacular large format map of Paris, published by Nicolas de Fer in Paris in the 1690s.

The old city of Paris, covering roughly arrondissement 1-8, is shown on the map, with the built-up and fortified city center differentiated from the fauxbourgs (or suburbs) that were at the time intermingled with farmland.

At the upper-left is a cartouche with views of some of the main palaces and public buildings in the city. At the lower-right is a similar inset cartouche with images of major arches and the Paris Observatory. More palaces and monuments can be seen at the bottom-left.

The panels at left and right list hundreds of street names locatable via a grid system.

Detailed Condition:

Minor splitting and tears around centerfold.
