Description:

Interesting late 18th Century map of the United States, published on the eve of the Louisiana Purchase.

The map reflects a number of early changes from the original 13 colonies:

- The District of "Main" is shown -- statehood would not come until 1820
- Vermont is shown -- statehood granted in 1791
- Kentucky is shown in a very tentative configuration -- statehood granted in 1792
- "Tennassee" is shown is also tentative -- statehood granted in 1796
- A massive Western territory is shown, subsuming all of the area of the future Jeffersonian (and non-Jeffersonian) states.
- West of the Mississippi River, the entire region is Spanish Louisiana, pre-dating the Third Treaty of San Ildefonso where Napoleon secretly acquired Louisiana from Spain (1800) and the Treaty of Aranjuez (1801)
- East Florida and West Florida are still shown.
