Description:

Rare 1813 edition of Reichard's map of the region, the first published with Fembo's imprint, following issues by the Homann Heirs of 1795 and 1806.

The map extends northeast to Hawaii, and north to the region beyond Korea to Sakhalin Island (named). At the far west is the Straits of Malaca, Sumatra and Great Andaman Island, with the Philippines and Marianas Islands at the center of the regions depicted.

The map identifies Ulimaroa or Neu-Holland. The full coast of Australia is now explored, although the coastline is still far from well refined.

New Zealand includes several dozen place names, although the Stewart Island is still attached to South Island.

Georg Christoph Franz Fembo bought the publishing house of Homann Heirs of Nuremberg in 1813, at which time he ordered improved or new maps from scientists as well, and he even drew new maps himself. All of Fembo's folio-sized maps are rare.
