Description:

A rare and significant 1679 map of Turkey in Asia by John Seller, a prominent English cartographer, featured in his renowned Atlas Minimus. This map showcases the vast territory extending from Cairo to Arabia Deserta, Assyria, the Caspian Sea (Mare de Sala), Little Tartary, and Constantinople in the upper left.

The accompanying engraved text table, which faces the map, provides an informative list of placenames and regions within Anatolia and the Near East. This enhances the map's historical value as it offers insights into the political and geographic landscape of the region during the late 17th century.

Detailed Condition:

Wear and toning at the centerfold.
