Description:

This exquisite manuscript map depicts the stunning coast from Monaco to Menton in the 18th century. It is an original hand-drawn creation by an anonymous French military engineer, showcasing his exceptional skill in cartography.

The map is highly detailed, featuring accurate soundings off the coast and highlighting important fortifications at Monaco and Menton and the charming town of Roquebrune-Cap-Martin.

Adding to its beauty, the map is embellished with two large, well-designed compass roses that serve both a functional and decorative purpose.

Overall, this map is a true masterpiece of 18th-century cartography and a valuable historical artifact that provides a unique glimpse into the coastal landscape of the French and Italian Riviera during this period.

The date has been roughly estimated.
