Description:

This 1745 map, published by Reiner & Joshua Ottens in Amsterdam, is a scarce sea chart depicting the coast of Finmark, Lapland, and the White Sea. The map was initially created by De Wit and later published by Renard from 1715 to 1739 before being taken over by the Ottens.

The map is beautifully adorned with a decorative cartouche, multiple vignettes featuring sea monsters and sailing ships, and two compass roses, enhancing its visual appeal.

As a sea chart, it would have provided navigational information for sailors along the Finnish coast and the White Sea, reflecting the maritime interests and exploration of the 18th century.
