Description:

A rare and captivating 1592 Czech edition of Heinrich Bunting's map of Palestine, providing a detailed representation of the region and showcasing the 12 tribes of Israel, extending from Gaza and Moab to the mountains north of the source of the Jordan River.

This exceptional map is from Heinrich Bunting's acclaimed work, "Itinerarum Sacrae Scripturae," which delves into the travels of various biblical figures and offers a comprehensive geographical account of the Bible during this period. First printed in Helmstadt in 1581, the book gained immense popularity, leading to over 60 editions published in different languages, including Danish, Swedish, Dutch, Czech, and English.

Bunting's map of Palestine captures the historical and religious significance of the region, with each of the 12 tribes of Israel carefully delineated. The map's geographical extent, covering the area from Gaza and Moab to the mountains north of the Jordan River's source, offers a unique perspective on the landscape and boundaries of the time.

This scarce Czech edition of "Tabule a wymalovánj země Swaté" is a testament to the widespread influence and popularity of Bunting's work. Its combination of cartographic precision, historical context, and religious significance make it a valuable and engaging addition to any collection of antique maps or materials related to the history of Palestine and biblical geography.
