Description:

Navigate the Mid-Atlantic Courtesy of Sun Oil Company

A brochure designed by Rand McNally & Co. for the Sun Oil Company to showcase the routes that connect Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, and West Virginia. The maps are vivid, using different colors to illustrate the locations of highways, paved roads, roads under construction, and various points of interest. This map showcases the many roads that connect the metropolitan cities of the area to the rest of the country.

Inside, the pamphlet features three different maps that may be useful for a visitor to the area. The best map in this group is a colorful map of historic and scenic sights in the depicted states. Each location is accompanied by a fine illustration with text that describes what the site is and its location. Some of the featured locations include the ancient Grave Creek Mound, Thomas Jefferson's home of Monticello, Robert E. Lee's plantation, and the National Mall. These locations are numbered and marked on the map to help navigation. Above this map are two metropolitan maps of Baltimore and Washington D.C. which mostly feature the downtown area and surrounding neighborhoods. Similar to the rest of the brochure, these maps feature general points of interest that visitors would likely want to see.

A fine brochure filled with vivid maps of the Mid-Atlantic to encourage automobile tourism in the area.
